A results take-over of aid effectiveness? How to balance multiple or competing calls for more accountability

Description

Tweet

Date: 25 July 2011 12:00-13:30 (GMT+01 (BST))
Venue: British Academy, London

This debate will explore possible tensions â?? and opportunities â?? when donors seek to reassure domestic publics that aid is being spent well, while also endeavouring to support the needs and priorities of aid recipient countries and their citizens.

The language of results is not new â?? it is integral to the aid effectiveness agenda. But against the backdrop of growing financial constraints, it is receiving renewed emphasis in many donor countries. This debate will explore possible tensions, as well as opportunities, where donors seek to reassure domestic publics that aid is being spent well while they also endeavour to support the needs and priorities of aid recipient countries and their citizens. How can domestic accountability to both these constituencies be supported more effectively? Are there tensions between these different stakeholders and forms of accountability, and how can they be addressed?

Speakers:
Sarah Cliffe â?? Special Representative and Director, World Development Report 2011: Conflict, Security, and Development
Sue Unsworth â?? The Policy Practice, and ODI Board Member
Alan Hudson â?? Senior Policy Manager, Governance (Transparency & Accountability), ONE
John Morlu â?? former Auditor General, Liberia
Chair: Alison Evans â?? Director, ODI

An ODI and BBC World Service Trust public event in the Busan and beyond: aid effectiveness in a new era series.

Click for more details Register to attend this event

Category

1. Debate
2. Types of Events

Tags

1. accountability
2. aid effectiveness
3. results

Date
11/11/2026
Date Created

15/07/2011
Author
admin