Date: October 5 â?? 16, 2009
Venue: Public Health Foundation of India, New Delhi, India

USAIDâ??s MEASURE Evaluation Project is pleased to announce the regional workshop on â??Impact Evaluation of Population, Health and Nutrition Programs,â?• for English speaking professionals. The workshop is sponsored by the Public Health Foundation of India (PHFI), New Delhi, India in collaboration with MEASURE Evaluation. The two-week course will be held October 5 â?? 16, 2009 in New Delhi, India.

Taught in English, the course is designed for mid-level health and population researchers, administrators, program managers, and other professionals involved in the implementation and evaluation of population, health and nutrition programs. The course provides intensive, hands-on training in impact evaluation with an emphasis on statistical methods for professionals currently involved in related activities.

The total course fee for the workshop is $6200. The total course fee includes the workshop tuition, accommodation, partial board (breakfast daily and lunch on weekdays), and round-trip airport transfers .These costs do not include airfare, visa fees, or other expenses.

Applications must be submitted to PHFI by July 10, 2009. *

A limited number of MEASURE Evaluation fellowships are available to qualified students.*

Please find a brochure and application materials attached. This announcement is not only intended to serve as a means of informing you of the availability of the program, but also to ask for referrals of applicants. There may be promising employees working in monitoring and evaluation of PHN programs who would be able to increase their contributions to this field in your country by enhancing their M&E skills by attending this. We would appreciate your forwarding this announcement to potential applicants.
